Research in Science Division Will Be Strictly for the Birds

By Toni Romano

Ever sit down and reflect on the private life of a bird? Theirs is a sorry lot—they're rapidly approaching the unutterable status of gold fish.

In the past, bird-lovers, from the Wren Seeker's association to the pheasant hunter, have plagued the indignant feathered ones. Have you ever wondered why a papa robin looks so irritated and irascible while watching him on the lawn? I know why—he's sick and tired of everyone watching him grub up chow.

Things look even worse.

Holes in Their Heads:

How a Clique Works . . .

Is student government at UMD destined to fall into the hands of one small clique?

The spring elections have focused attention toward the increasing tendency of one small group to gain direct control of no less than five votes in the Student council and an indirect influence over many other groups.

The primary functions of the UMD political clubs is to present on campus the views of their respective political parties. Such a practice is truly American and highly desirable.

But what de we have at UMD? We have this small "personal interest" group who have gained control of ALL THREE political clubs, the Political council, one social fraternity, the Inter-fraternity-sorority council and gained one member-at-large vote in the Student council. They have gained control under the guise of "developing school spirit" while their obvious and ultimate intention is to further their own ends.

Their latest "brain storm" is to conduct on campus next winter a political emphasis week to stimulate "political thinking and school spirit" but which, in reality, will only serve to feed their own egos.

THIS PROPOSAL WAS GIVEN SUPPORT AT THE LAST STUDENT COUNCIL MEETING! By sticking together and by capitalizing on a poorly attended Student council meeting, this clique succeeded in gaining support for their egotistical idea.

Services rendered to the institution by student groups are indispensable. But when these services are used as a disguise to cover the personal ambitions of one individual or group, the service is not only no longer valuable but actually detrimental to the institution.

It remains for the new Student council president and the student organizations who have the sincere interest of the school at heart to quell this malicious threat to true representative student government.

Professor Pershing B. Hofslund, ornithologist, along with the other zoology instructors, has organized a comprehensive study of the bird life of this area that will take approximately ten years to complete.

As far as can be ascertained, no subject field has ever before banded together to carry on research in one specific area.

Professor Hofslund, who was prompted by the many birds brought to him from Duluth and vicinity, will handle the taxonomy, or classification, and mounting of the birds that are to be added to the collection started by Dr. Olga Lakela. Dr. T. O. Odlaug will examine the birds for internal parasites, while Professor John B. Gerberich will study the stomach contents to ascertain the insects eaten. Dr. M. M. Keith will work on the comparative anatomy of the respiratory systems which include the highly variable syrinx, or voice box.

Spontaneous papers are expected to be written from these various areas of research. At the conclusion of a ten year period, Professor Hofslund hopes to publish a detailed survey of St. Louis county birds and papers covering such technical aspects as migratory affects.

Public baths, transparent bird houses and revealing incubators were bad enough. Now they can't even keep their parasites to themselves! Here's hoping Aves never gets the upper hand — or should I say claw?

Shakespeare Revisted—IV

The Comical History of King Leer

By Herb Taylor

(Scene: England, the throne room of Leer's palace. Enter King Leer, three ladies, nobles, courtiers, pages. Flourish. Hautboys.)

King Leer: We are assembled here, my lovelies three,

To see which of you, as the case may be, Doth bear the greatest sum of love toward me.

And she that loves me best, upon my life, Within a fortnight shall become my wife. Speak now, I pray you, each upon her turn,

And tell me truly how thy love doth burn.

First Lady: Oh Leer, you dear, you wear your crown with grace,

And all thy subjects love thy smiling face. Could I help love a monarch so sublime, Who rules with justice and an air benign? I love you for the way you rule, oh King, But truth to tell, and not hold back a thing,

I love you mostly Leer, because you're able

To drape my luscious form in mink and sable.

Second Lady: Oh, monarch sweet, I swear I love thee true.

My love is for the manliness in you. I cannot but admire your kingly gumption, For though your lungs are sound you've great consumption.

Rex Imperial, Regal and Supreme, To be thy wife—it is my fondest dream. You worry not, as other princes do:

While others fret, you sit and drink 3.2. Oh dearest king, I'm yours with all my heart;

I love the Royal Bohemian that thou art.

Third Lady: Some girls there are, or so I've heard it said,

Whose dearest wish is to become well read. They sit and read the latest "True Confessions,"

And thus neglect their housewifely professions.

Who could but scorn a wife who would forsake her Husband just to read "God's Little Acre." No such am I, I don't for knowledge burn, But for my monarch's love my soul doth yearn.

I'll not curl up with a book, oh sage of sages;

(Aside) Although I might curl up with one of the pages.

King Leer: 'Od's blood, you beauteous three, you overwhelm

And quiet nonplus the ruler of the realm. I must confess: To save my royal hide

Amongst the three of you I can't decide. I have it! Be it known by my decree,

Is now proclaimed a royal trigamy! Call on the priest! Let England happy be!

For I, posthaste, will make you queens—all three!

Three Queens, and I a King with lots of Jack;

(Aside) Within a decade we will have a pack

To fill this palace. Come! Let us espouse, And get to work upon a fine full house!

(Trumpets. Flourish. Exeunt omnes. Curtain.)

MUGWUMPS . . .

That politicians make strange bedfellows is an old adage but at UMD it has taken on a new meaning. When the new Chron came out this week, it showed three members of political clubs were photographically sitting on the fence. Leonard Wheat, Harvey Albond and Bob Leestamper showed up for both the Young Republican picture and the Young DFL picture.

COOK PALMS $100 . . .

When Don Cook stepped up to receive an award for 100 dollars at the honor day convocation, the prom committee had visions of using the money to replace the four potted palms that were filched from the Armory the night of the prom. According to the committee it will cost the juniors that amount to replace the palms which were used for decorations. They have issued a plea that their four palms be returned soon.

The STATESMAN Bows Out

This is the last edition of the STATESMAN for the current school year. During the past three quarters, 27 issues of the STATESMAN have been published.

This year was a significant one for it marked the first year that a weekly newspaper has been published at UMD. The mechanics and smooth co-operation so vital to publishing a weekly were set up originally by Don Ames, the fall quarter editor.

Ames served as editor during the 1948-49 school year. At this time the STATESMAN was a biweekly. When the University Relations committee saw fit to establish a weekly newspaper, Ames was asked to remain as editor for one more quarter to organize and train the present staff.

A study is now being made to determine whether or not the STATESMAN will carry national advertising next fall. It may be found that advertising on a national scale will bring in sufficient revenue to facilitate a six or eight page paper.

We're happy to have had a part in establishing the first weekly student newspaper here at UMD. For those of us who are graduating or leaving we can only say that the pleasure has been all ours. For those of us who are remaining to work, we say look for even bigger and better things to come.

For all of us we say as we take our leave—may we in some measure have lived up to our slogan "STATESMAN, yet friend to truth, of soul sincere."

Spring Sports Seasons Closes; Bida Cops MIAC Golf Crown

"Our boys ran well, possibly the best this season, but we just didn't have enough to give them real competition."

That statement by track coach Joe Gerlach sums up UMD's fortunes at the conference meet held last Saturday at St. Thomas.

Gerlach's words aren't without evidence either. Les Nummela, mainstay of the Bulldog thinclads, posted his best time of the current season in the half-mile, but it fell short of the time necessary to win.

Paul Johnson's best effort of the season netted him only a fourth place in the mile run.

The Bulldog's chances were severely hampered by the loss of vaulter Bob Potter who pulled a leg muscle prior to the meet. Gerlach also issued praise for quarter-miler Herb Peterson. Herb ran the 440 in :52.2 but failed to place.

The St. Thomas squad finished first, trailed by Macalester.

The UMD golf team had a little better luck in the conference meet held last week in St. Paul. Walt Bida, coach Lewis Rickert's number one man, copped the MIAC individual title, as he posted a low score of 155 on the rain-soaked course. The Bulldog linksmen as a team placed third in the meet, the first in which the local team has participated.

Coach Ray Isenbarger's tennis squad also participated in the conference meet at St. Paul. In the first round, Don Ames lost his match to the eventual winner, Bill Kurass of Augsburg. Kermit "Corky" Johnson won his first match, but dropped a close decision in the second round. The doubles team of Johnson and Don Kjellman also was eliminated in the first round, but have consolation in the fact that they were beaten by the doubles champions from Macalester.

Scribe Views Top Events In Two Years of Athletics

Finally we have reached the end of another year, a year that will leave a great impression on our minds. It has been with a lot of pride and humility that I have been a servant of the students of UMD in the capacity of the sports editor of the STATESMAN for the past 27 issues of the weekly paper.

Many fond memories of the past two years I have been in attendance at this school will be a part of me as I leave the halls of UMD. There are too many to list them all, but I would like to run through a few of the recollections which stand out above all the others.

First on the memory parade would be the acceptance of UMD as a member of the MIAC. This was a great step forward in the building of an about 70 yards down the sidelines was as nice a bit of running as we have seen on the gridiron for quite some time.

Rudy Brandstrom pulled the sleeper play against the Minnesota "B" team last fall. He caught a long pass, and his cut-back run left little to be desired in the way of a sports thrill.

Finally, one of the nicest parts of this position during the year, has been the wonderful cooperation I've had with the members of the athletic staff of UMD. It has been a pleasure to work with such men as Lewis Rickert, Lloyd Peterson, Ray Isenbarger, Joe Gerlach, Hank Jensen, and Ward Wells.

Ed Berry to Head 'M' Club As President During '50-'51

The UMD "M" club has elected its new officers for next year. Replacing Dick Carlson as president of the club during the 1950-1951 year will be Ed Berry, hockey and football letterman, who defeated Bob Neary and Fred Murphy for the leading spot on the list of officers.

Chosen vice-president for next year was Jack Peterson, hockey numeral winner. The

Dick Carlson Receives 'M' Club Award at Convo

Each year the "M" club of UMD chooses an athlete to receive their annual "M" club award. This year the group chose as the recipient of the trophy Dick Carlson, president of the "M" club for the past two years.

Carlson won four letters as a football player at UMD. He was a regular guard on the grid squad until last fall, when coach Lloyd Peterson switched him to a signal calling quarterback slot.

Dick graduated from Central high school in 1946 after one year of prep football, in which he played at a tackle spot in the line.

The summer school students will have a rare treat in store for them on the night of June 14 at 7:30.

On that Wednesday night, the students of the school will be the guests of Mr. Frank Wade at a baseball game between the Duluth Dukes and the Grand Forks Chiefs.

Bulldog Gridders Choose Fred Murphy as Captain

Fred Murphy, the STATESMAN'S Athlete of the Year, has been chosen by his teammates to lead the Bulldogs on the gridiron next fall. The new captain will take over the reins held last season by Ole Lee.

The wonderful comeback of the Bulldog cage squad in the second half of the contest against the Hamline Pipers at the latter's home floor stands high in the list of recollections on the field of athletic competition. After a dismal first half, the Isenbargermen rose to almost upset the high-flying Pipers.
